

Dear Parents and Guardians,

Election Day is fast approaching and is such an important conversation to have in the classroom. On November 3rd, we will be spending some time to discuss our country's presidential election, specifically who can vote and how the electoral college plays a big role.

Because there are so many varying opinions on the matter, we will not be discussing specific policies from either candidate. Instead, our focus is going to be the process and the right to vote. If your student has specific questions about the candidates, I encourage you to continue the conversation at home. My tone with the class will be one of positivity and respect.

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me. I would be happy to answer any questions.

Thank you for all that you do,
